

5 things to remember... ...about learning at home during the coronavirus

The latest school closures mean that you might be feeling the pressure of trying to support your child's learning at home again. You might be finding it particularly difficult if your child needs extra support with their learning.

If you are struggling, here are a few important things to remember:

Parent Club has a dedicated page for families of children with additional support needs so if you do want ideas to help at home, it's a good place to start.

www.parentclub.scot

- 1 You are not expected to become your child's teacher. The most important thing you can focus on is keeping your family safe and well.
- 2 Your child's school will be providing some learning for your child to do at home. If you or your child are struggling with it, contact your child's teacher for help.
- 3 If your child's teachers can't provide the support you or your child need, try speaking to the head teacher about what extra help the school or local authority can provide.
- 4 If you are struggling to access online learning because you don't have the right equipment or don't know how to use it, get in touch with the local authority as they may be able to help.
- 5 Some local authorities are providing extra advice and support during school closures for parents of children with additional support needs. Find out what your local authority is offering by clicking on the link to your local authority from our website.
www.enquire.org.uk/local-authorities

What if I need more advice?

Please get in touch with our helpline using our website contact form

www.enquire.org.uk/contact or call us on 0345 123 2303

Monday and Tuesday 9.30am-4:30pm

Wednesday - Friday 1pm-4.30pm

Check our coronavirus webpages for more information: www.enquire.org.uk/coronavirus

ENQUIRE

Our Reach website www.reach.scot has lots of advice for children and young people to help them with their wellbeing and learning through the school closures.